“ Lois, my mother, as I called her was my strength. She allowed me to share this journey of life and taught me how to become an honorable, hard-working, independent woman. The many quiet lessons that she shared enabled me to become a strong mother in order to guide my only child. Due to her influence, as an only child, she allowed so many others to enter into this life. Unconditional love makes it possible to love someone who is not a part of your everyday existence. Although she is now in her eternal body, I know that she is there because she lives in my mind and my soul each day. I will see her again someday, and we will rejoice and share our quiet moments once again, I love you Lois eternally.
