“ My beloved father, known to me as "daddy" has transitioned to eternal life. While he never claimed to be a perfect man, he was near perfection in the eyes of his children. He loved each of us unconditionally. Each child held a special place in his heart which we learned was large enough to hold never ending love for 10, plus 11 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren. He prepared us well for life depositing pearls of wisdom which he instructed we "store away, not throw away because you'll need them one day". He proclaim long and successful lives for his grandchildren and great-grandchildren and those yet to come. He taught us what it ment to be strong, proud black men and women, he celebrated our success and encouraged us through our shortcoming which he never considered failures. For me and my siblings, he was, until the end, Abraham, the father of many, a man of great spiritual stature, an example of true strength...our daddy.

Thank you Shafeqah for taking such loving care of my daddy as he made his journey to the point of rest. As he said to me more than once, "if love could keep him here on earth, I'd never die.
