So sorry, Brenda. I have some great memories of Butch trying to teach me to shag. He loved to dance. He loved life, and he loved his family.

I can't even imagine the pain you are going through with the loss of your husband. You are a very strong woman. May the wings of your Angel wrap you and comfort you through you're time of grieve. You are in my thoughts always!

The second memory in my life was the day Daddy took me to the hospital to see my baby brother. I loved him when I saw him. Through the years, I have loved him. Some of his life choices I did not agree with, but I always loved him. Some special memories were our Christmas pack-we would go to see our gifts together. For the ones that don't know, we have two younger brothers. In Charleston, we would roam the marshes. I had to save Butch one time. In Savannah, we won a dance contest as teenagers. Both of us loved to dance. Through the years, we have stayed close by phone. During the last few months, Butch talked a lot about God. I feel a peace that Butch is not hurting anymore because he is with his heavenly Father. God bless you, Brenda for being such a good wife to my brother.
